

I believe that the FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections. I as a customer of the phone company have a choice as to whom has my phone # and who phones my home. I used to receive 20 to 25 calls per week, now I receive none. If the privacy law changes I will be forced to take alternative measures to stop the unwanted call, even as far as to remove my telephone service from my home and use just cellular phones, which would greatly effect my income. As a consumer who pays for a service I believe I have should have more just right that a company whom base their income on disturbing our privacy at home when they have other means of advertising at their disposal.
